Health Insurance Update

Please note that on October 1, 2013 how you apply for health insurance will change.

If you do not qualify for any other type of insurance, you can “shop” for insurance from the New York State of Health: The Official Health Plan Marketplace.

New York State of Health: What Does it Mean for You?

The New York Health State of Health is where New Yorkers:

- can use the organized marketplace to shop for insurance that fits your budget
- compare different insurance plans to find out which one best fits your needs
- enroll in health insurance coverage

You will have a choice of health plans; help finding the plan that best meets your needs and for eligible persons, financial assistance to help pay for coverage.

What does health insurance offered on the Marketplace cover?

It depends on what kind of plan you choose. Each plan in the Marketplace will clearly list what is covered and how much it will cost. Health insurance offered on the Marketplace will include a comprehensive set of benefits.

Where can I get more information?

- To learn where you can find help and to sign up for updates, visit http://www.healthbenefitexchange.ny.gov or email exchange@health.state.ny.us
- Call Kaleida Health at (716) 859-8979 or Healthy Community Alliance, Inc. at (716) 532-1010
- Patient Navigators will be available in the community to assist you
- Call center operators also will be available, in multiple languages, who can enroll you in the Exchange

The Marketplace will begin enrollment on October 1, 2013 for health insurance coverage that starts on January 1, 2014.
Health Insurance

People who do not have health insurance may be able to get state-sponsored health insurance for free to moderate-cost.

- If you want to apply for health insurance you will need to fill out an application and show proof of:
  - Age
  - Identity
  - Home Address
  - Citizenship or immigration status
  - Income

- If you need help with your application call a facilitated enroller. Facilitated enrollers are counselors who are available in your neighborhood to help you apply and answer your questions, even during the evening and on weekends.

- Call (716) 859-9879 (Kaleida Health) or 1-800-698-4543 (New York State Department of Health) to find a facilitated enroller near you or for more information. Facilitated enrollers can also be contacted online at Enroll New York where you can submit an application for insurance at https://enrollny.org.

Facilitated enrollers can provide information on the following state-sponsored programs:

Child Health Plus

- Child Health Plus is the New York State health insurance plan for children under the age of 19 and who live in New York State.

Primary Care

Primary care can be defined in several ways, but generally refers to the first level of care provided by the main physician (doctor) responsible for your medical treatment in collaboration with other health professionals.

Primary care includes:
- Preventative care
- Health promotion
- Teaching healthy lifestyle choices
- Identifying and treating common medical conditions
- Health maintenance
- Diagnosis and treatment of acute and chronic illnesses
- Making referrals to medical specialists when necessary

Primary care providers can include:
- Family practitioners
- Pediatricians
- Internists
- Obstetricians/Gynecologists
- Nurse Practitioners
- Physician Assistants

A primary care provider (PCP) is your main health care provider in non-emergency situations. Primary care is usually provided in an outpatient or clinic setting. However, if you are admitted to the hospital, your PCP may assist in or direct your care depending on the circumstances. Having a primary care provider can give you a trusting, ongoing relationship with one medical professional over time.

Additional information about primary care is available on the following websites:

MedlinePlus - Choosing a Primary Care Provider

American Academy of Family Physicians - Primary Care Definitions
Preconception Care

If you are thinking about having a baby or trying to become pregnant, you should consider speaking with your health care provider about preconception care.

- Preconception care takes place before you become pregnant and can include identifying and taking care of problems that may affect you and your baby later, such as diabetes or high blood pressure, and taking steps to reduce the risk of birth defects and other problems.
- Your health care provider may have suggestions regarding your lifestyle, nutrition, fitness, medical history, environment and other concerns that will help you have a healthy pregnancy. Once pregnant, you will receive prenatal care until your baby is born.

Additional information about preconception care can be found at the following websites:

- New York State Preconception Care

- MedlinePlus - Preconception Care

Prenatal Care

While you are pregnant, you need to receive prenatal care to keep you and your baby healthy.

- Prenatal care can include recommendations regarding nutrition and physical activity, education about the birth process and basic skills for infant care.
- It is important to get prenatal care early in your pregnancy and regularly throughout your pregnancy. If you are over 35 years old or have a high-risk pregnancy due to a specific health condition such as diabetes or high blood pressure, you may need to see your health care provider more often.

- Regular care allows doctors to identify and treat problems early, increases the chances of having a healthy baby and reduces the risk of complications.

Emergency and Urgent Care

When you are sick or injured you have a number of potential options for places to receive medical care. The best choice will depend on the type of care you need.

- In an emergency, you should go to a hospital emergency department (room) or call 911 if you think the medical condition is life threatening, regardless of your ability to pay or lack of insurance coverage.
- An emergency is when you think you are very sick or badly hurt and need help right away.
- You may need urgent care if you have a minor illness or injury (not life threatening) such as a sprain, high fever, or a minor burn and need care within 24 hours.
- If you need urgent care, you should call your doctor’s office. If you cannot reach your doctor or do not have a doctor you should contact or go to the nearest clinic or urgent care center or community health center.
- Your child may have unique medical problems and may display different symptoms than adults. Symptoms that are serious for a child may not be as serious for an adult. Children may also be unable to communicate their condition, which means an adult will have to interpret the behavior.
- Always get immediate medical attention if you think your child is having a medical emergency.

New York State Health Care Proxy

The New York State Health Care Proxy Law allows:

- Someone you trust who is 18 years or older; for example a family member or close friend, to make health decisions for you when you cannot.
- For you to make sure that health care providers are aware of your wants, feelings and thoughts regarding your health; for example during surgery, illness or doctor appointments.
- You give the proxy (ex. family member or close friend) as much or as little say about your health as you wish. They must follow what you tell them to do.
- You to sign up for a proxy by filling out a form that is available in English, Spanish, Chinese, and Russian.
- The form is available on the New York State Department of Health’s website: http://www.health.state.ny.us/professionals/patients/health_care_proxy.
- Your health care provider may also have copies of the form.

- HIPAA - Health Information Privacy

  The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA)

  - http://www.hhs.gov/ocr/privacy/
    - Consists of a Privacy Rule and a Security Rule which work together to ensure that your medical information is protected.
    - HIPAA determines what medical information is protected and requires that safeguards be in place to protect health information, and limits access to that information.
    - Health plans, most health care providers, and other covered entities are required to follow HIPAA regulations regarding personal medical information. Not all organizations that have health information are required to follow these laws, including employers, many schools, life insurers, and others.
    - HIPAA also gives patients’ rights including the right to access their medical information, have corrections made, receive notice of how information may be used and shared, and make a complaint if they feel that their rights have been violated.
    - These rules also require safeguards to ensure the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of electronic protected health information.
    - Additional information can be found at the website Your Health Information Privacy Rights:
Electronic Health Records

- An electronic health record (EHR) is a collection of your medical history, including physician notes and other information in digital or electronic format.
- Provides quick access to the information needed for your care and treatment.
- Reduces the need for duplication of tests and procedures.
- Provides quick access to medical and medication information during an emergency.
